Managing Principal Business Technology Sourcing

Professional Experience

Jason leads the Business Technology Sourcing service line for Cresa. Business Technology Sourcing helps companies select and implement technology such as Unified Communications, Internet, Contact Center (Voice, Text, Web Chat, Email), Cybersecurity, and Cloud Computing. Jason helps clients select and implement cutting edge solutions that support their specific business needs and ensures coordination between the real estate and IT departments, especially when relocating. This enables clients to accelerate customer engagement, improve talent attraction/retention, and maximize financial results. Jason's discipline, intelligence and organized processes have saved his clients hundreds of hours and millions of dollars.

In addition to his technology and real estate consulting experience, Jason brings lessons learned during his military career. His naval service included flying A-6 Intruder attack jets off aircraft carriers. While planning and flying tactical missions he developed a talent for communicating details with concise, mission-oriented focus. Jason turned his disciplined approach as a naval aviator into a methodical approach to help companies optimize IT and real estate resources.

After departing the Navy, Jason earned an MBA from Arizona State University and completed a 15-month solo trip around the world about which he wrote and published a book. His military, travel and academic background give him the depth and character to guide his clients to the most effective solutions.
