

Drew Netherton

Principal
Orange County

Professional Experience

With over twenty-three years of experience, Drew Netherton, exclusively represents tenants occupying office and industrial properties throughout Southern California and across the country. From young venture-backed startups to Fortune 100 companies, Cresa's business is not to prop up building asset values, but instead, improve the operating efficiency and profitability of tenants through strategic real estate planning and seamless project execution.

As an expert in portfolio management, headquarter assignments, lease/sale acquisitions, renewals and dispositions Drew provides comprehensive solutions for clients in all industry segments. His services include the development of strategic real estate plans, workplace integration, market research, trend analysis, transaction management, municipal incentives, financial analytics and leveraged negotiations.

Drew began his career in commercial real estate after competing for the U.S. National Water Polo Team, earning a gold medal in the 1997 World Championship. He currently resides in Newport Beach with his wife Laureen and four children Keegan, Morgan, Gavin and Payton.

Education

Drew received a Bachelor of Arts degree in Psychology from the University of Southern California.
