

Jack Doherty

Senior Vice President

San Francisco

Professional Experience

Jack Doherty serves as a Senior Vice President in Cresa's San Francisco office. Prior to joining Cresa, Jack was a Director at CM Commercial Real Estate for close to 20 years where he completed over 2M square feet of transactions focused exclusively on representing the interest of occupiers. His extensive market knowledge of San Francisco's commercial office markets and expertise in all phases of the real estate process, including strategic planning, market analysis, financial modeling and complex lease negotiations, has made him a valuable partner to companies with ongoing real estate needs. Assignments have included everything from new offices, renewals, dispositions, renegotiations, and national portfolio requirements.

With this experience representing groups ranging from early stage to Fortune 500 companies in all industries, he has been successful in implementing creative real-estate strategies that achieve their business objectives, such as reducing real estate cost, conserving capital resources, identifying efficiencies that may have been overlooked.
