

Jamie Saunders

Managing Principal
San Francisco

Professional Experience

Jamie Saunders serves as Managing Principal for Cresa's San Francisco office, and leads the San Francisco downtown practice group. Prior to joining Cresa, Jamie was a Vice President at Jones Lang LaSalle and one of the founders of the Technology/High Growth practice group, working with a number of Bay Area technology and media companies.

Jamie has specific expertise in tenant focused strategic planning and extensive market knowledge of the San Francisco's Financial and South of Market districts, which house some of the largest technology companies in the area. Jamie has advised a number of high growth, venture backed companies, some of the top venture capital firms in the area as well as established media and technology companies. Jamie's deep knowledge of specific geographic submarkets, along with his ability to create long term, flexible real estate solutions, allows him to be a trusted advisor to his clients.
